

Preface and Disclaimer

I would like to dedicate this book to my friend Glenn Byers, someone I met on the Internet many years ago by accident really, and who has helped ever since with websites, SEO, guidance for many things and just being a great friend. We met at a Conference in California and had a wonderful time learning from the powers that be who were there to teach us their words of wisdom.

Now he has an aviary with beautiful birds such as those on the cover of this book. They are so beautiful. When I saw his website, I thought I must write a book for him for a present for all of the great work he does and has done for me over the past years.

He has Conures and spends much of his time between working his day job, doing the internet businesses that he has, looking after the needs of his home, as well as tending to his Conures.

Conures are spirited, energetic, amusing and entertaining pets to own. It is for this reason that these loving, brave and stunning birds make them such incredible pets. They come in an assortment of colours which usually match their personalities. They are small to medium-sized parrots that belong to a group of long-tailed parrot subfamily.

You wouldn't go wrong in choosing one of the different types of Conures for a pet to bring home for the family to enjoy.
