

Preface and Disclaimer

The other day while researching for material among my favourite  YouTube^{NZ} artists, I came across a great video about a Wildebeest playing with a young Rhino. They were just two youngsters playing together and I thought about our own world, how we have such diverse cultures and ethnic groups and how when the children get together – they do the only natural thing possible which is to play together. I featured a still from one of the videos in my book What Is A Rhinoceros? And I had a directive from the owner of the video that I could only use her material should I insert the words "no one needs rhino horns except for rhinos" I felt that those words would not fit into my plan for my book, however, soon after receiving that directive I got another request from a young mother who was very interested in my animal books for her own children – and she asked if I would write a story about poaching as she felt that her own children are suffering because of all the animals in the world who are going to be extinct by the time hers are grown. And here is the story.

* * * * *

While some of the pictures are my own and all content is my own, please contact me should there be a discretion that you would like me to fix and we can fix it quickly. Links to all outside material are always at the back.

Any quotes from actual text on pages I wanted to include in my references are in the colour blue so that you can distinguish between my thoughts and the thoughts of others who actually provided me with the insight as to what I wanted to include in my own book.

Watch out for more from me in other areas. As usual, my email address for correspondence, criticisms or just some love from you is stories4debbie@gmail.com

Kindest regards

Debbie Nicholson

2 May 2019

